Park Translations International Goes Green

New York, NY, January 2010 – Carrying an ongoing commitment to environmentally responsible business practices, Park Translations International has announced that it has “gone green,” and is now accredited as CarbonNeutral®. In addition to offsetting carbon production with a contribution to the CarbonFund, Park TI has taken steps to lower its carbon footprint and become more environmentally friendly. These steps have included company-wide policies with regard to recycling and computer energy conservation, duplex printing for internal resources, energy-efficient light bulbs with motion sensors, and the use of recyclable material whenever possible.

Park Translations International is a strategic language consultancy positioned to support communication throughout the world. Our business engagements span a wide variety of practice areas and technical specialties. We are headquartered in New York City, while maintaining operating offices and locations worldwide.
